

Sickening Philosophy

Music and words by John Doyle

Intro: (Am, Em, G) 4X

Am      Em G Am (Em, G) (Same for each line of verse/chorus)
Verse→    Some days a—go
              I felt I ruled
              Then I woke up to see me fooled
              We hit the road
              We did some speed
              The chain was cut and we were freed

Pre-chorus→    F            G            Am Em, G, Am, Em, G
                  Now I'm losing the faith I had in you
                  F            G (tacet.....)
                  Now I'm losing the faith I had in you

Chorus→            One time around
                  Already I found you're not the type for loyalty
                  Chasing you down all around the town is a sickening philosophy

You lost your touch
                  Gave up the race
                  Do you miss me much?
                  You'll get replaced

'Cause I'm losing the trust I had in you
                  'Cause I'm losing the trust I had in you

One time around
                  Already I've found you're not the type for loyalty
                  Chasing you down all around the town is a sickening philosophy, oh yeah

Bridge→            Dm                            C      G
                  When you have your shot at life's rewards
                  Dm                            E7 (let ring)
                  You just don't spill your cup expecting to get more

(Lead Guitar over first verse and chorus chords)

Now I'm losing the faith I had in you
                  Now I'm losing the faith I had in you

One time around
                  Already I've found you're not the type for loyalty
                  Chasing you down all around the town is a sickening philosophy
                  It's a sickening philosophy
                  It's a sickening philosophy
                  It's a sickening philosophy